Employment for Business

Employment law is becoming ever more complicated, particularly as it has to accommodate European directives, UK legislation and regular decisions emanating from Employment Tribunals and the higher courts.

The best way to limit your business's exposure to costly and potentially damaging disputes is to ensure that you have sound contracts of employment and personnel management systems in place.

Butcher Andrews offers sensible, practical and cost effective guidance in all areas of employment law. We can also help you to establish procedures and policies which enable you to successfully navigate the legal complexities.

Our expertise covers all aspects of employment law, including :-

- ◆ Contracts of employment
- ◆ Staff handbooks
- ◆ Disciplinary and grievance procedures
- ◆ Maternity rights and flexible working
- ◆ Discrimination
- ◆ Redundancies
- ◆ Business transfers
- ◆ Dismissals
- ◆ Compromise agreements

We provide expert advice to employers when faced with potential or actual claims and, if necessary, legal representation at Tribunal.

Butcher Andrews also offers business audits which analyse your existing contracts and procedures. We will discuss our findings with you and, where necessary, propose changes to minimise your exposure to claims.
